

JAN TERM

Internship Spotlights...

Katy Callewart

"This Jan Term, I traveled to Seville, Spain with a Spanish immersion program. I hoped to understand the language better and to speak more fluidly. I attended classes in the morning, volunteered at a nursing home in the afternoon, and stayed in an apartment with a Spanish family during the night. This is a picture of me in front of La Giralda, one of the most iconic churches in Seville."

Abbey Linell

"My internship was at a local law office called Bell Davis Pitt. One of my projects was to organize files of international trademarks. The map photo is a visual of the different countries the company manages trademarks for. I had the opportunity to work with encouraging and accomplished individuals. My internship was a positive experience and I'm glad I chose to work with such a great firm."

Jane Nunn

"I interned with Paralyzed Veterans of America in Washington DC. I had the opportunity to attend the grand opening of the MGM Grand Hotel at National Harbor where my boss and I inspected wheelchair accessibility for wheelchair-bound veterans; I went to a leadership summit; I visited the White House; and on January 20th I attended the presidential inauguration followed by a gala!"

Maiya Barsky

"I interned in the film industry with a Salem Academy alumna, Andrea Passafiume, in Silver Springs, Maryland. I worked with her at Docs in Progress, a NGO for documentary filmmaking, and I also worked with her on Tribeca Film Festival's programming. I also worked with her husband, Tom, who works for the Discovery Channel. I had the amazing opportunity to work and meet with editors, production managers, and more at Discovery."

Taylor Marshall

"I had such a great time with the Arts Council of Winston-Salem. I learned so much about non-profit organizations and how the donations they receive really help sustain and create art in the community. I am so grateful to have gotten the opportunity to work with everyone there."

Jasmine Moretz

"I chose to work at The Children's Home because I have been interested in psychology and wanted to gain some exposure to what therapy is like, particularly for children. When I am older I am considering working as a child psychiatrist or psychologist. I enjoyed my internship because I learned a lot about the challenging work therapists do every day and met some incredible people. At The Children's Home, I researched and analyzed the current program's therapy modalities and group needs based on client diagnoses. I was also assigned to create a three week curriculum with daily lesson plans and activities that will be tested on the patients over the summer."

Sydney Hodson

"For my internship I decided to shadow an anesthesia PA, or, Physician's Assistant. I got to follow her all around the hospital and watch all the cases she does in the OR, or in any type of clinic. I was originally interested in anesthesia just because it was a medical internship that I would have the opportunity to do, but I fell in love with it after the first day. With anesthesia, I could see hundreds of different types of surgeries and learn about all of them instead of just being stuck in a specific specialty like ortho or cardiac. Anesthesia fully captures both my love of learning and also the ability to help people."

Laura Browne

"I interned at the local Newspaper in my hometown, Mount Airy. I was more than thrilled to have the opportunity to intern at The Mount Airy News. I was especially excited because I have a large interest in the field of journalism, and it's something I hope to pursue in college, and perhaps in a career! While there, I wrote two feature stories about events in my town. One of these stories required me to go to the local library to take pictures and record facts about a successful "story time" program there. I also got to shadow the paper's editor and one of the paper's reporters! I thoroughly enjoyed this opportunity!"

Jenna Barnes

"I interned at Smith Reynolds Airport in Winston-Salem. I chose this internship because I wanted to know more about aviation and I want to become a pilot. I loved my internship because I learned so much and gained invaluable experience. I was able to learn about the airport and what it takes to maintain it, as well as operations. The plane in this photo was flown during World War II and the Berlin Airlift. It is spending the winter at Smith Reynolds!"

Hannah Goldfarb

"For Jan Term this year I returned to the Holocaust Museum & Education Center of Southwest Florida to work under the supervision of a curation specialist. I adore being able to handle 80+ year old artifacts! I installed a temporary exhibition, started working on a permanent exhibition, and cataloged three collections, including items from a Nazi faithful service medal to a photo album confiscated from a German officer. The content and purpose of this museum has moved me to try to volunteer at a similar museum during my time in Brazil next year. It is also because of this museum that I hope and plan to relocate to South America and pursue a career in politics, international relations, and human rights."

Kelly Arnold

"I decided to do my internship at Mount Vernon, splitting my time between getting to know the estate and archaeology. I really enjoyed getting to know George and Martha Washington and gaining a better understanding of how our first president wanted our government to work. With archaeology, I've been able to study the way that Washington lived and the way that he treated the enslaved people who comprised about 90% of his plantation. I've loved meeting all of the fabulous, diverse guests that travel to see the home of the first president."

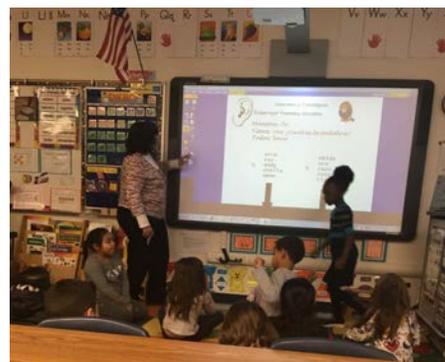

Alexaya McKelvey

"For my Jan Term Internship, I worked with the "Special Collections and University Archives" and "Digital Projects" departments. I helped digitize a group of artifacts, ranging from 1876 to 1973 that are related to secret societies of UNCG. These include photographing necklaces, badges, letters, and even a diamond tiara. I loved getting to work in the archives and delving into the mysterious history of this institution."

Adwoa Ofori-Gyau

"This Jan term, I worked at Smith Farm Elementary School in the Spanish immersion kindergarten class. I love Spanish and my goal is to be fluent one day. I also enjoy working with children and so I feel this internship was great because it gave me a taste of my two favorite things; Spanish and children. I was able to practice my Spanish and develop more patience when working with children. One of my projects was creating some anchor charts to aid the kids in counting numbers."

Courtney Clawson

"I interned at Wake Forest's IMG College property. I was able to learn about the sports marketing and event management industry. I enjoyed working at the three Wake Forest home basketball games. I was able to sit with the radio broadcasters at center court, wearing headphones and watching the game literally right in front of me!! Having grown up around college athletics, I now have such an appreciation for the people who work hard to make college athletics enjoyable for fans like me!"
